Stakeholder Engagement

We are pleased to announce that Cora Maguire from Chadwicks has recently joined our stakeholder network. Despite this addition, there remain five vacancies in our stakeholder group. We encourage recommendations for individuals or organizations that would be interested in contributing to our efforts. Currently, our stakeholder database includes 16 members, reflecting a diverse range of expertise and interests.

Introduction of the Multi-Actor Approach (MAA) Tool

The PoliRuralPlus project team has recently launched a new Multi-Actor Approach (MAA) Tool. This innovative tool is designed to facilitate collaboration and knowledge-sharing among all relevant stakeholders, ensuring that our research and innovation processes are more aligned with societal needs and demands. The key objectives of the MAA Tool are to be flexible, user-friendly, and adaptable across various timelines and projects. Its primary components include stakeholders, social spaces, and programs. While the tool is currently in a trial phase, we will provide comprehensive training and share access details once it is fully operational.

Call for Articles, Blogs, and News

We are currently collecting articles, blogs, and news pieces related to the green economy, particularly those focusing on rural and urban dynamics in Co. Monaghan. We welcome contributions from stakeholders and collaborators to enrich our website's content and foster knowledge exchange within our community.

Stakeholder Database Update

To enhance our understanding and integration of rural-urban strategies, we are updating our stakeholder database with detailed information. We are keen to discuss potential integrated urban-rural (U-R) strategies, stakeholder strategies for U-R development, and the impact of COVID-19 on these linkages. To collect this information from you, we have planned to have a brief virtual meeting or an in-person discussion, please let us know your thoughts.

We look forward to your continued support and active participation in the PoliRuralPlus project
